From the Green Bay Republican. Temperance among the Chippeways. As there seems to be but little going on in the Eastern part of the world of any interest toour readers, we have thought advisable to give a short flashed back upon his foes with an expression of account of the progress of this good work among triumphant daring, which seemed as it were to the Indians, feeling confident it will not be unex- say-I am avenged already! A cry of impatience ceptionable. The question has frequently been asked us, why we did not give more space to this subject, in giving accounts of the progress of the work throughout the Union.

We learn that while the late Treaty was in progress at La Pointe, Lake Superior, the friends of tempe ance got up a temperance meeting, and a ery interesting meeting came off on the occasion. It was about 100 miles farther north-west than temperance had formally broken silence. It was indeed a novelty in the wilds of this wild region .-The meeting was well attended by the Indians, and as we have been furnished with the particulars of the temperance movement at that time, we will give them as a curiosity from the Indian

The Rev. Mr. Hall was called to the Chair: Mr. Stuart, Commissioner of Indian Affairs for Michigan, was called upon to address the meeting through an interpreter. He said, "I am happy to see so many Indians present at a temperance meeting. I have long had an acquaintance with the Indians, and I know that drinking Whisky is a great evil;" and said he "there is nothing that grieves your Great Father, the President more than that white people should sell whisky to the Indians. The use of rum or whisky makes bad parents, bad children, bad husbands, and bad wives. Children sometimes kill their parents, and parents their children, and it always makes them miserable and poor. Your Great Father is disposed very much to give you comforts, such as money, goods blacksmiths, carpenters, farmers, and schools, that you may be happy and intelligent. But he has often been very sorry to learn that the blankets and other things which are given you for your wives and children, have been sold for whisky. Now I hope that these thing, will be so no longer. I hope you will now sign the temperance pledge and have nothing more to do with whisky; by doing this you will please the missionaries and your teachers. You will please your Great Father the President also, you will please me, and above all you wil please God." An Indian of the Sandy Lake band whose name was Martin Luther, spoke and said "he was pleased with what their Father had said but was sorry to hear any of the young men laugh he thought it was not good manners." Mr. Stuart said "he presumed they were laughing for the joy they had at the prospect of getting rid of whisky."

Mr. - then addressed the meeting, and expressed his pleasure in seeing so many of his brethren present on the great subject of Temperance. You drink a little whisky and think you feel better; you can run fast, feel strong and very rich; you drink more and then feel very mad, hunt for your knife to kill your wife or child. Some other Indians have given up whisky, and build good houses, make good farms and get good living. and he saw no reason why the Chippeways or the Lake might not do the same. The people of this nation may now sign this paper and drink no more whisky. If the Chiefs will sign, the young men. old men, the women and children will sign and drink no more, and put the bad white man to shame." You now, said he, "have the monster at your command, but if you let him in he wil take possession of your country, every ledge wil be a miserable place. When you go to Sault St. Marie, if they ask you to drink whisky, you can say I have signed the paper and cannot drink, and he hoped the Chippeways might become so temperate as not to have in all their country the disgusting sight of a drunken Indian."

Rev. Mr. Hall then addressed the meeting, and said he, "I have been eleven years in this country; till three years ago I had not seen an Indian drunk, then some Indians went to the Sault and brought in a little, at another time they brought more. You will know how people act when they are drunk, it makes them complete fools. When you drink you think it does you good, but I know it does not." Mr. H. then related an instance of the death of an Indian woman, occasioned by whisky, and said "this is what whisky will do He hoped the Christian Indians would take notice of what had just been said, that those who practice drinking cannot enter Heaven, but now, said he is the time to sign and drink no more."

Biazbick, a Chief of the Faskagamah band, arose and pledged himself to do what he could to pro mote the cause in his band and in the nation.

Wm. Brewster, Esq. of the American Fur Co. said, "I am very glad to see so many present. 1 have for many years sent goods to your country and formerly great quantities of whisky. I have always found that whisky drinkers were poor himters, got but little furs, and never paid their traders, and I am satisfied that whisky drinking is a very great evil;" and pledged himself that the American Fur Company should send no more whisky to the country, and then said to the Indians, " if you will join with us we will keep it out of the coun-

The meeting then adjourned, and met again in the A. F. Company's Warehouse. Many of the Chiefs were present. Mr. Stuart and others spoke again, and Zephaniah Platt, Attorney General of the State of Michigan, said, "I used to drink whisky, and I thought whisky was my friend, but I found he was my enemy, and I cast him off and drank no more. You consider the Sioux your enemies because they do you hurt and kill your people; well, whisky does the same, so you ought to make war with whisky and drive him out of your country," and various other pertinent remarks were made by Mr. Platt. The Chiefs were now informed that they were at liberty to speak. One Chief said "he understood Mr. Stuart's business was to make the treaty and the payment," and seemed quite surprised that a Government officer should interest himself in those little matters Another ill-looking Chief whose jaw had been broken in a scuffle with a grizzly bear, said he thought Mr. Stuart himself would like a little whi-ky, when there was no one to see him drink. These remarks were a source of great amusement in the meeting. Mr. Stuart assured them to the contrary. "Hole-in-the-day" asked the question whether all the white people had come into the measure of giving up drink? Mr. Stuart informed him, "No; that there were as many bad people among the whites as among the indians, but the greater part of the good people had come into the measure."

The second Chief of the Fond du Lac band said, "This thing appears to be good. If we suffer whisky to work mischief in our nation, the good effects of our schools will be lost, and the labors of our teachers (the Missionaries) will not bring any good, for drinking whisky and good instructions do n't mix up well together." The head Chief and second Chief of this band signed. Hole-in-theday signed, saying, "I sign for myself." All the principal men in the nation, with a few exceptions, signed. All made speeches before signing, and showed clearly that they kaew what they were

CITY IMPROVEMENTS .- There is a most astonthe demand for them is also increasing in a like rate. We predict that in ten years from January, 1843. EXECUTION OF A SPANIARD. The following is from the last number of Jack Hinton:-The Spaniard turned a calm look towards the battle-field, and for an instant his dark eye burst from the crowd of soldiers, and the crash of their firelocks threatened that they would not wait longer for his blood. But the guerilla's manner changed at once: and holding up a small ebony crucifix before him, he seemed to ask a moment's respite for a short prayer.

The stillness showed his request was complied with: he turned his back towards the crowd, and placing the crucifix on the low parapet, he bent down on both his knees, and seemed lost in his devotions. As he rose, I though I could perceive that he threw a glance, rapid as lightning, over the wall towards the river that flowed beneath .-He now turned fully round; and unfastening the girdle of many a gav color that he wore round his waist, he threw it carelessly on his left arm; and then, baring his breast to the full, knelt slowly down, and, with his arms wide apart, called out in Spanish, "Here is my life-come, take it."-The words were scarcely uttered, when the carbines clanked as they brought them to the shoulder; the sergeant of the company called out the words, "donnez" a pause-"feu!" The fusillade rung out, and, as my eyes pierced the smoke, I could see that the guerilla had fallen to the earth, his arms crossed upon his bosom. A shriek, wild and terrific, burst from the crowd The blue smoke slowly rose, and I perceived the French sergeant standing over the body of the guerilla, which lay covered with blood upon the turf. A kind of convulsive spasm seemed to t sitch the limbs, upon which the Frenchman drew his sabre-the rattle of the steel scabbard rung through my heart; the bright weapon glanced as he raised it above his head: at the same instant the guerilla chief sprang to his legs; he tottered as he did so, for I could see that his left arm hung powerless at his side: but his right held a long poignard. He threw himself upon the Frenchman's bosom-a yell followed, and the same moment the guerilla sprung over the battlements, and with a loud splash dropped into the river beneath. The water had scarce covered his body, as the Frenchman fell a corpse upon the ground.

A perfect roar of madness and rage burst from he French soldiers, as, rushing to the parapet, a undred balls swept the surface of the tiver; bu he tall reeds of the bank had already concealed he bold guerilla, whose left arm had received the ire of the soldiers, who now saw the meaning of he movement by which he had thrown his girdle around it. The incident was but the work of a few brief moments; nor was there longer time to think on it; for suddenly a squadron of cavalry wept past, at the full speed of their horses, callng out the words, " place there-make way there in front. The ambulance-the ambulance!

THE EMPEROR NICHOLAS AND THE CONJUROR The celebrated Bosco, some of whose conjuring leats are not less extraordinary than those of the wonder-working Dobler, recently created great surprise by a trick which he performed in the presence of the Emperor Nicholas and the imperial family of Russia. It was as follows:

'Will your Majesty,' said Bosco, addressing the Emperor, 'graciously permit me to guess your houghts? The imperial assent being given, the conjuror equested the Emperor would look him steadfastly in the face. The request was complied with .-Bosco then drew out his pocket-book and pencil, and wrote some words on a slip of paper, which he folded up and presented to the Emperor, requesting his Majesty not to look at it just then. l'aking a pack of cards he proceeded to deal them one by one on the table, begging the Emperor would command him when to stop. After several had been dealt the Emperor said, 'Now stop. Bosco stepped back a few paces from the table, and requested the Duke of Leuchtenberg to count the cards which had been dealt. There were nine. 'Was it your Majesty's will,' said Bosco, 'that I should stop at the ninth card? Did any circumstance induce your Majesty to give me that command?

'None whatever.'

'I did not draw the pack of cards towards me, as if having finished dealing? or make any movement which could in any way induce your Majesty to command me to stop?' "Certainly not."

'Now I beg your Majesty will be pleased to read what is written on the slip of paper I presented to you a few minutes ago. The Emperor unfolded the paper and read-

Your Majesty will command me to stop when I have dealt out the ninth card.'

REMORSE AND PATHOS .- A man was arrested a day or two since, charged with most inhumanly beating his wife, with intent to kill, while under the effects of liquor. The following scene which occurred on his examination we extract from the Police reports in the Daily Mail.

When the witnesses for the Government were called to sign their names to the witnesses' bond, a very affecting scene took place between the prisoner and his two children, who were both pre-

"Come here Joanna, dear, come here, I won't The little girl wept bitterly, and with a trembling step approached to the seat occupied by the guilty father.

"My dear Joanna, come nearer-let me kiss away your tears, my blessed baby," and the little child impelled by parental love fell into the arms of her father, who after kissing her affectionately many times said.

"My dear, how is your poor mother? oh, guilty wretch that I am-why did I beat her so? and her head, how is it Joanna? do tell me; the poor creature, she is living, and no one to take care of hernobody is left her but you and Jamie-here [taking from his pocket a $2 note] take this, child, and buy your poor mother something to comfort her poor broken heart-with something to make her warm. Oh, God. save her life, do-wretch that I am to strike her so-but she is alive! [brightening up] yes, and heaven will keep her alive. Oh, the fiend rum! That did it, Joanna, that drove me mad, and then I beat her; ch! oh! oh!" and in the midst of these exclamations the officers hurried him to the lower lock-up room, where he was followed by his two little children, weeping as though their hearts would break.

STEAMBOAT SUNK .- On Monday morning last, the steamer Wabash, while on her passage from Columbus to Apalachicola, struch a rock about 4 miles above Fort Gaines, and immediately sunk. She had on board 580 bales of cotton, most of which was saved. The boat will probably be a [Tallahassee Sentinel.

We are informed-but the story seems almost incredible-that a child of eight years of age has been confined for the last six months, in the jail at East Cambridge, for the crime of staaling twenty-five cents from a man in Lowell. What a commentary is this fact, if it is a fact, upon the even-handed justice of our laws, when we recolishing number of houses now in progress of build- lect the various bank swindlers who walk fearlessin our city, and we learn from good authority that ly over our highways, "unwhipt of public justice." COLTON'S MEDICATED CANDY.—
The ase allow me, through the columns of your paper, to call the attention of those who are suffering from coughs, the call the attention of those who are suffering from coughs, colds, kc. to a preparation for the relief of difficulties of this kind by C. F. Colton of this city.

I have made frequent use of Colton's Medicated Cough Candy, and in all cases to my entire satisfaction. Also, I have been personally acquainted in cases of others who have used it with like results.

have used it with like results.

It is evidently an agreeable and efficacious medicine, and may be taken freely without prejudicial effects upon the system. In this last respect particularly it is decidedly superior to the generality of articles of the kind now offered in the market as safe and harmless medicine, and is thereby, in connection with its medicinal merits, justly entitled to the the market as sale and in connection with its medicinal merits, justly entitled to the first and highest confidence of those who may wish the re-

"PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1, 1841.
Messrs. Editors—Desiness is a disease which has hitherte wen considered incurable, but I can inform the public that it is a mistaken idea. I have been deaf for ten years, and oncluded that I must remain so; but not many months concluded that I must remain so; but not many months since I saw in your paper an advertisement of Scarpa's Oil for Deatness. As the last resort I concluded to try it. I am new happy to say I can hear as well as I ever did. Two of my friends likewise tried it. One of them was so deaf that he used an ear trumpet; now he hears perfectly well without it. The other was very much troubled with noises in the ears and head, and he at once found relief, and is well. Two bottles cured me, which I thought getting well pretty cheap.
